A latent Office Incident.

The patent office official bowed politely from his place at his desk as the visitor in clothes of clerical cut and a smooth face greeted him with a subdued "Good morning, sir."

"Good morning," responded the official, with a cheerful, $150 a month manner. "Is there anything we can do for you this morning?"

"I don't know really, sir," crooned the caller softly. "To know if you can is the object of my visit this morning, sir."

"Very well, state your case, and if we can do anything for you you may rest assured it will be done."

The visitor cleared his throat pretty much as if he were going to deliver a sermon.

"I think," he said slowly and with hesitation, "if I mistake not, that I saw a statement in some one of the public prints to the effect that this office would not issue a patent on Sunday. Is that true, sir?"

"Quite true. It does not."

"Why is that, sir, if I may ask?"

"It is against the rules of the office is all I know."

"Will it issue one on any other day of the seven, sir?"

"Certainly it will. That is what it is here for."

"Oh, thank you, how nice," twittered the visitor, taking a large madras handkerchief from his coat pocket, shaking it out and wiping his brow with it. "That being the case, if you will be kind enough to let me have one on Tuesday, sir, you will do me a great personal favor. You see, sir, Tuesday is my birthday, and I want a patent on it so no one can use it for birthday purposes, sir, except myself."—Washington Star.

Stockport, England, boasts one of the largest Sunday schools in the world. The total number of scholars at present on the books is no fewer than 4,834, while there are 288 male and 195 female teachers—a grand army of over 5,000.

It has been estimated that over 2,000,000 acres are devoted to the manufacture of deer in Scotland and that about 6,000 stags are annually killed.

Sixty thousand dollars a year, a salary drawn by the French ambassador in London, is the largest sum paid to any diplomatist in the world.

Ice land, in the north Atlantic; the Isle of Man, between England and Ireland, and the Pitcairn islands, in the south Pacific, have full woman suffrage.

SOME DAY.

Come, sit with me, love, in the gleaming
Of the firelight's flicker and flare!
Together we'll drift in our dreaming
Away from the trouble and care.
And the present with all its sorrow Forgotten tonight shall be
As we talk of the glad tomorrow
And the some day by and by.

Of the day of our hopes, belated,
When I win from the world a name,
And my thought ship's decks are freighted
With honor and gold and fame.
And all that is brightest and clearest
In the world's supply
I'll bring to your feet, my dearest,
In "the some day by and by."

By blossom and bloom surrounded
Our own little nest shall stand,
The castle in clouds we founded,
The home that our hearts have planned,
Where not a shade of sadness
Shall darken our sunset sky,
And life shall be joy and gladness
In "the some day by and by."

But if of our dear dream stories
No tale of them all come true,
And the sky of our grandest glories
The tempest shall hide from view,
Then, facing it, dear, together,
With never a tear or sigh,
We'll wait for the clearing weather
And the some day by and by.

THE STYLE OF ALDERMEN.

People Who Do Address Them as "The Honorable" in Spite of Webster.

In none of the "ready letter writers" are directions given as to the prefix which it is proper to put before the name of an alderman, and it is for this reason perhaps that a controversy has recently arisen. One of the disputants says:

"When writing to a member of the board of aldermen or a commissioner in one of the city departments, it is highly salutary, I think, to address him with the prefix 'Hon.' In proof of the correctness of this view of the case this correspondent invokes the testimony of Webster, the dictionary compiler, who said of the use of 'the honorable':"

"An American usage. It is a title of courtesy merely, bestowed upon those who hold or have held higher public offices, especially governors, judges, members of congress or of the senate and mayors."

Webster was born in Connecticut in 1758 and died in the same state in 1843, long before the establishment, as such, of the present New York board of aldermen and at a time when that body was generally known as the common council, and any opinions which he may have expressed in his dictionary or any views which he may have entertained personally on the subject of honorary titles in use in the United States could have no special bearing upon the case of the New York aldermen, whose fame as legislators has now spread to confine where the name of Webster is quite unknown.

The title alderman is derived from the Saxon word "aldorman," otherwise elderman or elder. It was a title of honor in early days in England, and the elderman or alderman was a local functionary responding somewhat to the present justice of the peace. In England the alderman was usually a judge, but afterward the office came to be an elective one, and from the English word has come the American title alderman so valiantly upheld by the aldermen of New York, who insist upon a full share of all political honors, perquisites, privileges, rights, advantages and immunities, and he would be a courageous man indeed who would omit from the designation of an alderman (especially an alderman recently elected) the title "the honorable." The legal duties of aldermen are so few, their exercise is so carefully guarded by acts of the legislature, that it is necessary, so to speak, for the alderman to find, if the expression may be used without offense, work for themselves. Accordingly from time to time resolutions are passed by the board taking the form of ordinances which by tacit agreement among the members it is arranged shall not be acted upon unless the alderman of the district in which the applicant or applicants reside assents to action. In this way the powers of an alderman in a district are very considerably enhanced, and in such cases the petitioner, realizing the full force and importance of the alderman's office, is glad of the opportunity to address him as "the honorable," and realizes the futility of another course.—New York Sun.

Press Women of Louisiana.

The press women of Louisiana are generously recognized by their brothers of the fourth estate. At the annual meeting of the New Orleans Press club, recently held, it was voted to admit women to membership. Speaking of this, The Daily Picayune says: "The women engaged on the newspapers in New Orleans are perhaps not the least among the great body of workers, and it was a gracious recognition of their worth to accord them membership in the great newspaper league. It is said that the New Orleans Press club is the first in the country to admit women to membership. The act was characteristic of the well known chivalry of our southern craft. The newspaper women of New Orleans certainly appreciate the compliment extended, and in the press club, as on the press, will give of their best for its success and development."

A Corroborated Criticism.
"What the piece needs," said the man who volunteers advice, "is more atmosphere."

"That's exactly what I said," replied the manager. "I told the leading lady yesterday that when she plays that part she ought to put on more airs."—Washington Star.

Iceland, in the north Atlantic; the Isle of Man, between England and Ireland, and the Pitcairn islands, in the south Pacific, have full woman suffrage.

Sixty thousand dollars a year, a salary drawn by the French ambassador in London, is the largest sum paid to any diplomatist in the world.

When we read of a mother who leaves her newborn babe shivering on a doorstep, unguarded from the elements, and to suffer at the mercy of strangers, we wonder at her cold heart and lack of mother-love. There are other ways, than desertion, of exposing a child to a life of suffering. The mother who through ignorance or neglect of the health and vigor of the organs that make motherhood possible, brings into the world a sick and puny child is at fault for the life of suffering to which it is condemned. If a woman would have healthy, robust, happy children, with bright futures, she must take proper care of her womanly self.

The best of all medicines for women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly and only on the delicate and important organs that bear the burdens of maternity. It makes them strong and healthy. It prepares for wifehood and motherhood. Taken during the expectant period it banishes the usual discomforts and makes baby's coming easy and almost painless. It insures a robust, healthy new-comer and ample, natural nourishment. Over 90,000 women have testified to its merits over their signatures. All good druggists sell it. Mrs. Ursula Dunham, of Siscerville, Tyler Co., W. Va., writes: "My baby now is nearly a year old. She was born last March. After she was born I had local weakness. I could not stand up long enough to wash the dishes. In September I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took three bottles and it has cured me. I can now do all my work."

If constipation was painful like a toothache, sickness would to a very great extent be a thing of the past. If it were painful, the proper remedy would be prompt relief. The usual discomforts and makes baby's coming easy and almost painless. It insures a robust, healthy new-comer and ample, natural nourishment. Over 90,000 women have testified to its merits over their signatures. All good druggists sell it. Mrs. Ursula Dunham, of Siscerville, Tyler Co., W. Va., writes: "My baby now is nearly a year old. The term of Senator W. M. Stewart will expire on the 3d day of March, 1899. The duty of choosing his successor will devolve upon the Legislature which is to be elected next November. It is currently reported that there will be at least two other candidates in the fight for the Senatorship in the Silver-Democratic party, and, of course, the gold men will have a candidate, for, strange as it may seem, there are persons in this silver producing State who favor the gold standard.

At present Senator Stewart is the only person who has publicly announced his candidacy for the Senatorship, though Hon. Francis G. Newlands, our present Representative in Congress, and Hon. A. C. Cleveland, of White Pine, who left the Republican party when that party declared against silver, are frequently mentioned in connection with the place. Both Mr. Newlands and Mr. Cleveland have been interviewed on the subject, but neither so far as reported in the papers, gave a decisive answer to the question: "Are you a candidate for United States Senator?"

Should Mr. Newlands enter the Senatorial contest there will be an opening for somebody to succeed him in the House of Representatives. Among those mentioned for the place is Hon. Thomas Wren, one of the founders of the Silver party. Mr. Wren served a term in Congress some years ago, and his record on the silver question is as unblemished as that of Congressman Bland of Missouri, whose bill Mr. Wren assisted in passing over the veto of a Republican President.

It is somewhat early yet to discuss the Senatorial succession, yet it is a matter that very many people in Nevada are talking about at the present time, probably because of the visit of Senator Stewart and Representative Newlands to the State.

ONE ARROYO, a crank or an anarchist, attempted to assassinate President Diaz of Mexico at the time of the recent celebration in the city of Mexico. The would be assassin was arrested and lynched. The police, it seems, were implicated in the lynching of the crazy wretch and a dozen or more of them were charged with the crime. Their trial has just ended and the jury, after a few hours deliberation found ten of them guilty and they were sentenced to be executed, and public opinion sustains the verdict and the sentence. Counsel for the condemned men took an appeal in each case. The laws, in what is supposed to be a lawless country, are more rigidly enforced in Mexico than in the United States.

CAPTAIN LOVERING, of the Fourth Infantry, United States Army, is being tried by court-martial at Chicago for conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline. He caused Private Hammond, a member of his company, to be dragged over the ground from the guard house to the office of the Adjutant. Witnesses testified that Captain Lovering kicked Hammond and prodded him with his sword until the blood ran. When the rope with which Hammond was tied and dragged was removed it was found that his clothing was worn through by being drawn over the rough ground and that deep wounds had been made in Hammond's flesh by Lovering's sword.

REV. A. E. MORRISON, a minister, has been arrested at Topeka, Kansas, for the murder of his wife, who died at Pan Handle, Texas, October 8th under circumstances which indicated that she had been poisoned. Morrison was at Pan Handle at the time of his wife's death, but for several months previous to that time had been engaged to be married to Miss Whittlesy of Topeka. The marriage was arranged to take place at Christmas. The evidence against Morrison is damaging, and the fact that he was engaged to marry another woman, while his wife was living and in good health is a strong circumstance against the gentleman.

In the annual report of the condition of the postal savings banks of Great Britain, it appears that those institutions have $682,035 depositors, or one for every six persons in the whole population of the United Kingdom. Estimating the population of the United States at 78,000,000, if we had postal savings banks in this country the same ratio would give them more than 12,000,000 depositors. The chances are, however, that they would greatly exceed that number.

THE Surgeon General of the United States Marine Hospital Service reports that during the yellow fever epidemic in the South there were 4,829 cases, of which 446, or less than ten per cent, proved fatal. Improved methods of treating the disease and the enforcement of sanitary regulations makes yellow jack much less dangerous than heretofore. The cold weather has ended his career for this season and no new cases have been reported for several days.

It seems that an agreement was entered into years ago by Mr. Crooke and John Scott, deceased. DISMISSING A WEAKLING.

The Poor Fool Could Not See That He Had Her Won.

Reginald Hanscomb stopped in the hall and nervously fumbled at the rim of his hat, meanwhile gazing into Pochentus Poindester's eyes with a fondness that the beautiful girl could not mistake.

He opened his lips as if about to speak, but the words that he sought to utter would not come, and the fair maiden gave a low, sweet sigh that was calculated to fill his heart with blowholes.

Yet he stood there, and she stood in front of him, looking and longing and wondering why he hesitated.

Once she was almost tempted to take him back into the parlor and tell him that it was all right; that she knew how he felt about it, and that she would just take it for granted without the usual formality. But her maiden modesty rose in rebellion, and she said to herself:

"No. If he is too timid, too cowardly, to say the words, it will perhaps be better for us both if we take diverging ways."

Then, speaking aloud, she said: "Well, good night, Mr. Hanscomb, if you must be going."

"Well, good night," he said. "I guess I must be going."

"Well, good night," she said again, holding the door open for him.

"Well, good night," he said, pressing out through the vestibule.

She shut the door with a bang and sat down upon the stairway and buried her face in her hands and sobbed.

But half a minute later she heard him returning. Her heart gave a glad leap, and she rushed to the door to admit him.

He stood looking down into her sweet, expectant face for a moment after the door had swung back, and then, clearing his throat, he said:

"Some pesky kid punctured my tire while I was inside. I wonder if I could borrow your mending outfit for about two minutes?"

"No," she replied. "My repairing outfit is up in the attic, and I can't find it tonight. Walk home. It'll do you good."

Then she slammed the door in his face, and he tried to think—poor fool—as he wended his way homeward, what he had done to offend her.—Cleveland Leader.

THEY LIKE THE COUNTRY

When Retired, Naval Officers Seldom Live in Large Towns or Cities.

"Naval officers always settle in the country when they can," remarked a prominent officer to a Star reporter. "During their active careers—that is, during the time they are at sea, they are necessarily cramped for room, and while some of them on the large modern ships have elegant and sumptuous quarters, there is necessarily a limit to it. This thing grows on a man to such an extent that the first thing he does when he is retired, and in hundreds of cases long before retirement, is to hunt up a farm and locate on it. Three of the admirals on the retired list, headed by Admiral Ammen, are the owners of farms in the immediate locality of Washington, and any number of other officers are similarly provided for, though their farms are not so extensive. They seem to want stretching room, and it will be noticed that when they do locate they secure big places. Their minds run into stock and chicken raising. The officers of the marine corps have been noted for years as the owners of the speediest horses owned or driven about Washington, and they have been always prominent in connection with our racing associations and organizations. Naval officers have been similarly prominent. It is different with army officers. Their ambition seems to be for nice houses in the cities. The naval officers' ideas all run toward the country. I don't like to give names, but I could give dozens of illustrations to prove what I say, if it were necessary. Take a look at the incoming cars from any of the suburban places around Washington any morning, and there will be sufficient proof of what I say."—Washington

A STRANGE MIX UP.

How the Theft of a Bicycle Led to Embarrassing Complications.

Among the strange complications for which the bicycle has been responsible the following is rather a masterpiece in point of intricacy. Those persons who took part in it are now disposed to view the incident with some pride as a triumph of confusion and misunderstanding not likely to be duplicated.

B., who lives far up town, had occasion to visit a bicycle store on the Boulevard a few days ago. He left his wheel outside, near the rack in which stood several machines for rent. While he was attending to his errand inside the shop he chanced to glance out through the door just in time to see a man spring upon his unguarded wheel and ride off at a furious pace down the street. With an exclamation of rage B. rushed to the sidewalk, seized one of the wheels from the rack and started off in hot pursuit of the thief.

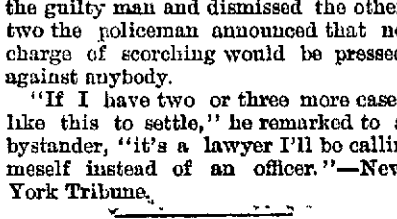

The proprietor of the shop stood for a moment aghast. He had not seen the beginning of the trouble, and the only thing clear to him was that his supposedly honest customer had made an astonishingly bold attempt to steal a wheel from the rack. There was only one thing to be done. Jumping upon another wheel, he joined in the chase, and the three scorching up the Boulevard in admirable racing style. The real thief proved the poorest rider of the three, as the shopkeeper was unquestionably the best, and the result of this state of affairs was that the distances between the different members of the trio grew speedily less. As they drew together a truck crossed the avenue, crowding them into a small space. The rate at which they were going precluded any dismounting, and the three came into collision with a resounding crash. Before they had fairly extricated themselves a policeman appeared. His first proposition was to "run them all in" for scorching, but, impressed by the unusual excitement of his prisoners, who seemed to be more disturbed in mind than ordinary scorches, he waited to hear their stories.

"This," as may be imagined, was no short task. The genuine thief was the only one who saw humor in the situation. Knowing that he had nothing to say for himself, he stood by and grinned, while the shopkeeper and his customer spluttered out angry and conflicting accounts of the affair. But the truth was finally ascertained. As he collared the guilty man and dismissed the other two the policeman announced that no charge of scorching would be pressed against anybody.

"If I have two or three more cases like this to settle," he remarked to a bystander, "it's a lawyer I'll be calling myself instead of an officer."—New York Tribune.

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING.

Congressman Newlands Speaks on Town Improvement.

In pursuance to the request of a number of citizens for Mr. Newlands to address the citizens of Reno on town improvements, and that gentleman having signified his willingness to meet the citizens at the Court House last evening, a large audience of representative citizens gathered. A number of ladies were also present.

Judge Webster called the meeting to order, and briefly stated the object of the meeting and that Mr. Newlands would give the people the benefit of his large experience in improving property and that an opportunity would be given to discuss the town's water supply and such other matters as were of interest. Judge Webster then introduced Mr. Newlands.

Mr. Newlands addressed the citizens of Reno upon the question of municipal improvements under the new incorporation act and particularly upon the question of the general attractions of the town and the public utilities.

He said that the new charter was well drawn and seemed to adequately provide for the public improvements so essential to the growth and attractiveness of the town, the powers being ample for the acquisition of water works, electric light or gas works, parks, a library and other public buildings.

ATTRACTIVE OF RENO.

He has always believed the prosperity of Reno would largely depend on its general attractions, that it had marked advantages in its beautiful river and its picturesque location and that these advantages if properly utilized would make it an attractive place for strangers and for people in search of recreation or health. So far as appearances were concerned he attached most importance to the railroad station and its surroundings, and the Truckee River.

THE RAILROAD STATION

House was an attractive building but much could be done to add to its appearance by improving its surroundings with trees, shrubs and grass, as has been done at Wadsworth and as was customary in Southern California. Doubtless the railroad would co-operate in this. The Plaza North of the railroad was an eyesore, and the engine house located there should be removed. The Plaza could then be beautified and would then present a perpetual advertisement of the thrift and good taste of the town to the thousands of people passing through.

THE RIVER

Was the next feature of importance. Its banks on both sides for a share of at least fifty feet each side of the waters edge should be secured by the town from the railroad bridge to the bend in the river above Powning's Addition. A wall should be constructed along both banks as a support for an esplanade or parkway which should be planted with trees and vines and open to the public the entire length. We could without much expense have a parkway on each side of the river on which buildings could front with terraces and grass plots stretching down to the river side parkways. This could be done gradually and without much expense. The first step would be to secure the land. This would be doubtless donated in most cases, and the expense of condemnation in others would be trifling.

He had already done something in this line on the North side of the river from the bridge to the mill dam, but the difficulty of securing by private negotiation all the lots fronting on this improvement had prevented the completion of his plans. The town would have no such difficulty as the power of condemnation could be exercised.

THE BRIDGE

Mr. Newlands thought that particular attention should be paid to the four corners of the bridge at Virginia street. The attractiveness of the two Southern corners at this point was secured as one side was occupied by the hotel, which was a good looking building, and whose owner would doubtless improve the river front in accordance with the requirement of the times, and the other side had been declared to be a public plaza, which the town could improve with terraces towards the river and a tasteful wall.

The Northern corners were unsightly. The one partially occupied by the Salvation Army and comprising the block stretching down to the gas works had been offered for sale several years ago, and fearing it would be divided into small lots upon which an unsightly development might be made he had bought it, intending to hold it for a post office site. The idea being that in addition to a convenience as a post office, it would offer opportunities for tasteful land scape work by the Government which would make it a park as well. The block on the other side partially covered by the livery stable and down to Mr. Fulton's house he had also attempted to secure for some tasteful developments but had not succeeded in buying the whole and so was only partially able to complete his plans. He had secured, however, the river bank for the public and had erected a stone wall which would be a part of the contemplated parkway or esplanade.

As to the block stretching down to the gas works he was unable to say whether the location of a post office would be regarded with general favor, but if not he thought the Pavilion, belonging to the Agricultural Society could be moved to this block and in that event the building could be surrounded by grass and trees that would give it a park like appearance. The Pavilion building was a creditable piece of architecture and could be improved by a colonial portico with columns on the river side without much expense. As to the other block running up to Mr. Fulton's home it could be acquired for a Kindergarten School, engine house, library and other public utilities and with tasteful planting of trees and grass could be made to have an attractive appearance.

By these or similar methods these four corners at the bridge and the entire river side could be forever preserved from the unsightly development which has thus far characterized the banks of the river, whose beauty constitutes the great attraction of the place, an attraction which could be made most effective commercially in adding to the growth and wealth of the town.

PUBLIC UTILITY.

As to the utilization of public utilities Mr. Newlands prefaced his remarks by stating that he was interested in the present water works to the extent of a few thousand dollars, but that his general interest as a citizen and taxpayer was supreme, and that he would endeavor to present his views with fairness and impartiality. There was no doubt in his mind that Reno was entitled to the very best water and on the best attainable terms, and that the administration of the town would be better if the water works were owned by the town.

SOURCE OF WATER SUPPLY.

It was conceded that the source of supply must be the Truckee river. The only question was as to the point of diversion and the means of diversion as the distributing system would be the scheme, whatever plan was adopted.

As to the point of diversion it was important that this should be as far as possible from the sources of pollution, which were the towns of Truckee, Boca and Verdi. It was important therefore that the water should be taken from the river as near Reno as possible so that between the sources of pollution and the point of diversion the water might be thoroughly aerated and purified. This would necessitate a pumping plant, and as the plant could be run by water power the expense would be very slight. Ample pressure should be secured so as to do entirely away with fire engines.

The remaining question was whether this should be accomplished by the construction of new water works, or by the purchase of existing water works so reconstructed and improved as to do away with the defects now complained of.

Such defects were stated to be, first, the diversion of the water through a long ditch which it was difficult to guard against possible pollution or occasional accident. Second, fineness of reservoirs; third, insufficient distributing system.

Doubtless no proposition for the purchase of the existing water works would be considered which did not involve the remedying of these defects before the purchase was consummated. Pumps should be substituted for the ditches; the reservoirs should be cleaned and renovated and the distributing system made sufficient for the requirements of the town.

Assuming that the present works could thus be made as perfect as a new system and that they could be purchased at a reasonable price, it might be better to purchase them for the reason that they probably have the best power for pumps at the present location of the electric light plant, and also that the present income of the water company would furnish a fund for the payment of interest and ultimately for the payment of the principal of the bonds, whereas if a rival water works were established by the town, whilst it must be conceded that the town would have an advantage, yet business necessity would compel the water company to lower its rates in competition with the town and thus the latter might for some time lack the income required for interest on bonds, and be forced to have recourse to taxation for that purpose.

Besides, assuming now that the works so perfected could be purchased for a reasonable price, it would be better to buy them rather than to erect new works, for it is always bad political economy for a community to create two capitalizations where one would serve the people.

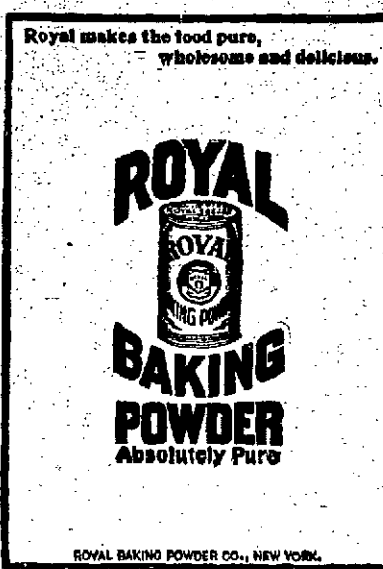

Another advantage would be, that if the price were agreed upon the water company would doubtless take bonds instead of cash, thus doing away with all difficulties in negotiating the bonds.

CONTROLLING CONSIDERATIONS.

Mr. Newlands added that though these advantages should have due consideration, the controlling consideration should be abundance and purity of supply, and the community would demand this as an essential.

IN HYDRAULIC ENGINEERING.

All these things Mr. Newlands said showed the importance of starting right with definite well considered plans, and these required the early employment of a competent hydraulic engineer who could plan the new works, examine the old works, make estimates and report upon the advantages or disadvantages of construction as opposed to purchase. An employment of this kind should precede any experiment, however meritorious apparently.

DONNER LAKE.

Mr. Newlands continued, that whatever plan was adopted it was essential that a full volume of water should flow in the river during the entire year. The volume was ample during nine months of the year, but during the remaining months it was low owing to the great and increasing demands of the ditches during the period of drought. At such times the impurities of the river were likely to become concentrated and to create disease. This would be the period of malarial and typhoid fever unless guarded against by a reservoir system in the mountains that could be relied upon to maintain the equal flow of the river during the period of greatest scarcity.

WATER PAVING.

Mr. Newlands recalled the purchases made by him of Donner Lake and other reservoir sites in the mountains, seven years ago. He said those purchases were not made for private profit, but were made at the request of many prominent citizens of Washoe county during a period of great drought, when the irrigated lands of the Truckee were suffering for water. He had agreed to hold them until the community could acquire power to purchase them.

Later on the restoration of the normal flow of the river caused the people of Washoe to lose interest in the question of controlling reservoirs in California. He thought that this was a proper time to take this matter under consideration as it would solve not only the question of a full and ample supply of pure water for municipal uses, but would maintain the equal flow of the ditches and permit the extension of irrigation to lands not yet reclaimed, and would also solve the question of power. Not only power for the proposed pumps and electric light plant, which was essential, but power for manufactures which will hereafter be established on the river.

These various uses of water would advance the convenience and comfort and would increase the wealth of the entire county of which Reno was the center.

These properties had been transferred to the Sharon Estate Co. They could not of course be held for an indefinite period, but could be procured now on reasonable terms, and he submitted the matter for discussion and consideration.

The thing to do was to have estimates made covering all these public utilities and then if the powers conferred by the charter were not sufficient for their acquisition the question could be discussed as to whether further powers should be applied for.

SEWER SYSTEM.

Mr. Newlands also spoke of the sewerage system and the small expenditure which would protect the sewers from pollution.

He also dwelt upon the transportation question and the importance of making Reno a distributing center. He advised the taking up of the question by a competent committee of business men and insisted that continuous pressure upon the railroad people without heat or rancor would in the end produce an impression, for he believed that it was as much to their interest as Reno's to build up this State.

HARMONY.

Mr. Newlands in conclusion dwelt upon the importance of harmony in acting upon these questions involving the propriety and comfort of the town. There had been in his judgment too much dissension and rancor in the past. Political rivalries should be laid aside in the consideration of the business questions of the town and all should unite in creating a healthy public sentiment that would make co-operation of rivals in business possible, thus securing the highest advancement and best growth of the town. The ladies particularly could be of great aid in these matters, and an improvement society guided by their good taste and judgment would be of great aid in suggesting improvements that would add to the comfort and attractiveness of the town. Civic pride and civic harmony should go together in the great work before the people of Reno.

At the conclusion of Mr. Newlands' address, Dr. Stubbs was called upon, but said he would simply rise to offer a resolution as follows:

Resolved, That we have listened with satisfaction and approbation to the address of Mr. Newlands tending toward the enlargement and improvement of our city and that a committee of five be appointed to inquire into the various propositions suggested by Mr. Newlands with a view of their promotion and that the committee report at some subsequent meeting.

Dr. Stubbs then spoke briefly in advocacy of the suggestions of Mr. Newlands. That the question of municipal improvement was one of vital interest to the community. That while it was a difficult question to be solved, it would be solved. He spoke eloquently of Reno as a city of happy homes and that it was sure to be an educational and distributing center.

Harmony must be a factor in the town's development and the little personalities and bickerings must be laid aside. Let us make haste carefully if not slowly and take a broad view of this movement. We have the location and the advantages, let them be made the best possible use of.

The resolution was then adopted and the following appointed as the committee: Dr. Stubbs, Judge Cheney, R. L. Fulton, J. E. Bray and S. J. Hodgkinson.

Mr. Newlands moved to add two ladies to the committee and it was so ordered. Mrs. Elda A. Orr and Mrs. C. O. Fowling were named as members of the committee.

The meeting adjourned and the committee met and organized and arranged to meet at an early date.

Death of Mrs. Vesey.

Mrs. A. A. Longley received a letter from Rev. Chas. McKelvey, Superintendent of the Old Ladies' Home at San Francisco, announcing the death of Mrs. Mary H. Vesey at that institution on Sunday, the 21st ult.

Mr. McKelvey writes that her death was in a measure accidental. It is believed that she had arisen from her bed and lighted the gas in the room and had dressed herself, but finding that it was hardly daylight had concluded to turn off the gas and then laid down on the bed to await the rising hour. At the proper time the nurse went to Mrs. Vesey's room to call her, but failing to get a response or open the door she immediately called Mr. McKelvey, who soon succeeded in effecting an entrance when the room was found filled with escaping gas and Mrs. Vesey unconscious. It is supposed that in turning the key on the gas fixture the deceased turned it too far, and the burner was left fully a third open.

A physician was called and every effort made to save the patient, but it was impossible. The Home physician does not think the gas was wholly the cause of death, but believes that heart trouble, from which the deceased had been an sufferer for a long time, was the direct cause, aggravated, no doubt, by the escaping gas.

Mrs. Vesey will be remembered by many Renoites as the mother of Ed. Vesey, who kept the Riverside; when it was known as the Lake House.

Select Your Costumes.

W. Anderson, of the firm of H. Anderson, the San Francisco costumer, is at the Riverside Hotel, having been engaged by the fireboys to furnish costumes for the masquerade ball tomorrow evening. Upon entering Mr. Anderson's rooms at the Riverside one is dazzled by the glimmer of spangles, gold and silver lace, sapphires and other precious stones. The costumes are all fresh and new and are suitable for characters from royalty to plebeian. The prices range from $2 upward and the most particular person can easily be suited, but if unable to decide Mr. Anderson, who is thoroughly posted, can readily suggest a character. Mr. Anderson will be in his rooms at all reasonable hours.

Removal Sale.

Mr. R. E. Queen having become the owner of the Chambers building occupied by me as a dry goods store, has concluded to make important changes in the building which necessitates my moving temporarily to some other place. Preparatory to moving I must reduce my stock of dry goods and will therefore sell at a great reduction my entire stock consisting of Dry Goods of all qualities in latest styles, Ladies and Childrens Jackets, Caps in cloth and plush, Blankets, Flannels, Ladies cloth, Lace Curtains, Bedspreads, Ladies and Childrens underwear and hundreds of articles of fancy goods. The reduction is sweeping and customers will be saving on all purchases.

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE.
FRANK BERGER, ADMINISTRATOR OF the estate of Michael Logan, deceased, having filed in the court a petition praying for an order to sell the whole or some portion of the real and personal property of said deceased, public notice is hereby given that the hearing thereof has been fixed by the Court for Saturday, December 4th, 1897, at 10 A. M., at the Court house in Reno, Nevada, and where all persons interested may appear and contest the same.
By order of the Court
Nov-18-18 F. B. POTTER, Clerk.
SHERIFF'S SALE.
George T. Harkness, Plaintiff;
Stephen Conner, Defendant.
UNDER AND BY VIRTUE OF AN ORDER of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, issued out of the Second Judicial District Court of the State of Nevada for Washoe county on the 24 day of November, A. D. 1897, in the above entitled suit, wherein George T.
Harkness the above named plaintiff, obtained a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale against Stephen Conner, defendant, on the 16th day of August, A. D. 1897, for the sum of six thousand dollars, gold coin of the United States, together with $140 attorney's fees, and $188.50 interest, aggregating $6,188.50, and costs $18.30, besides accruing costs and interest, I am commanded to sell those certain lots, pieces and parcels of land lying and being in the town of Reno, Washoe county, Nevada, and bounded and described as follows, to-wit: All of Blocks H, I, J, K, L and M in Conner's Survey in the western addition to the said town of Reno, as known and designated on the official map of said survey, said blocks J and K extending to the west line of Sier street, and the whole being bounded on the south by Sier street, on the east by Sierra street, on the north by Section line, and on the west by Nevada street; together with all and singular tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Public notice is hereby given that on Friday, the 26th Day of November, 1897,
At 10 o'clock P. M., of said day, in front of the court-house door of the county of Washoe, I will in obedience to said order of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, sell the above described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy said judgment with interest, costs, etc., to the highest and best bidder for gold coin of the United States.
W. H. McINNIS,
Sheriff.
Dated November 2, 1897.

LITTLE MONEY IN MEAT.
How Restaurant Proprietors Suffer From the Make Up of Meat Cards.
"If all restaurant proprietors," said one of them, who has been well known as the owner of a Broadway eating place for the last ten years, "could only induce their customers to eat less meat they not only would make more money, but they would give better satisfaction all round. In the first place, there is little or no money for the restaurant keeper in selling boiled or roast meats. It costs too much to handle them and requires too much time to prepare them and serve them as they should be to leave any profit for the man who does it."
"And in the second place the patrons order meats when they would much prefer something else. That is the fault of the proprietor. He arranges his menu wrong. The small steaks, the chops and the cutlets are placed too conspicuously on the bill of fare. A man's eye is bound to catch that list first, whether the man wants meat or not. Being in a hurry, as 99 men out of 100 are in the country, he orders the first attractive dish he finds, and the result is he gets something he does not care particularly about and something which the restaurant man does not care particularly about selling to him."
"Last winter the man who runs the restaurant in the national house of representatives tried an experiment which turned out remarkably well. He deliberately set to work to lure his patrons away from the 'steaks and chops to order' column, and so instead of printing it in bold black letters in the middle of the bill of fare he tucked it away down in the lower right hand corner and placed at the top of the card a list of the dishes that were most profitable to him. They proved not only to be most profitable to him, but most satisfactory to his customers, and instead of using six loins of meat a day, as he had done before, he used only one and a half and supplied the same number of guests."—

Powdered Crab as a Medicine.
A Russian journal that has recently come under our notice calls attention to the fact that for some 20 years past the inhabitants of a malarial locality in the government of Kharkov have used powdered crabs with great success in the case of fevers. The powder is prepared in the following way: Live crabs are poured over with the ordinary whisky until they get asleep. They are then put on a broad pan in a hot oven, thoroughly dried and pulverized and the powder passed through a fine sieve.
One dose, a teaspoonful, is generally sufficient to cure the intermittent fever.
In very obstinate cases a second dose is required. Each dose is invariably preceded by a glass of alooe brandy as a purgative. The powder is used in that locality in preference to quinine. So says the journal. We will not vouch for it.—New York Ledger.

Looking Backward.
"You must feel very happy in this lovely cottage you call your own."
"How can I when I think of my family that owned an estate of thousands of acres, with a castle and a whole regiment of servants?"
"Why, when did they lose it?"
"During the eleventh century."—
